The Olympic Games

The first Olympic Games took place in Greece, in 776 BC. There was only one race called the Stade, but it was very popular. The Ancient Olympic Games grew for over 1000 years until the Romans came to Greece. Then they ended. In 1896, a French sportsman called Pierre de Coubertin started them again. The first modern Olympic Games took place in Athens and fourteen countries took part. Today, the Games are the most important sporting event for athletes around the world.

In 1948, Sir Ludwig Guttmann organized a sports competition for people with disabilities at a hospital in England. This was the beginning of the Paralympic Games. Today, the Paralympics are a world-famous sporting event and take place after the Olympic Games have finished.

The five rings on the Olympic flag represent five continents. The rings are red, blue, green, yellow and black because every country has got one of these colours in its flag.

The Olympic flame burns from the start of the Olympic Games to the finish. Organizers light the torch at the ancient Olympic site in Greece. Then they take it to the stadium in the country where the Games will be.

There's a ceremony at the end of each event. During the ceremony, organizers show the flag of the country each winning athlete comes from, play the national anthem of the gold medallist and present the gold, silver and bronze medals.

- Usain Bolt is a Jamaican sprinter. He was the first man to win both the 100 and 200 metres at three Olympic Games. He was also the winner of the 4 x 100 metres relay in London 2012 and Rio de Janeiro 2016.

- Michael Phelps is an American swimmer. He became the Olympian with the most medals: 23 gold, 3 silver and 2 bronze.

- Sarah Storey is a British cyclist. She broke the record for the women's road race in the Paralympic Games when she finished seven minutes before the silver medallist.

- Nicola Adams is a British boxer. She was the first female boxer to win an Olympic gold medal.

- Larisa Latynina was born in Ukraine and represented the Soviet Union. She was a gymnast. She is the only woman who won nine gold Olympic medals. She also won five silver and four bronze medals.
